Your Place
of Business

At work, do your employees have the opportunity to do what they do best, every day?

Employees provided with a Motivating Environment where their performance is managed using a Strengths Based Approach:

Are more
Motivated

Have a Stronger
Work Ethic

Are More Engaged

Are More Loyal

Perform Better

The Question now becomes...

How do I begin focusing on fueling performance in the future, rather than assessing it in the past?

How do I create a motivating environment in which my employees can thrive?

How do I move from a "one size fits all" approach to instead engage my employees' performance based on their unique strengths and motivators?

Overview

In this highly participative workshop, individuals and teams will gain key insights into their own motivators and strengths, and how these can drive peak performance.

With the use of a Performance Blueprinting tool, individuals will be guided step-by-step to begin the process of practically applying their unique motivators and strengths to their performance objectives.

This will essentially act as a core performance discussion tool that keeps both individuals and teams focused on executing performance objectives, thereby impacting the bottom line.

All participants attending this Workshop will receive and begin building a Performance Blueprint that will help them implement what they have learnt back in the workplace! This will allow them to develop their own personalised performance model, and take ownership to provide the detail of what needs to happen for this model to become a reality.

"The corporate world is appallingly bad at capitalising on the strengths of their people."
